Worship means participation in the services of worship and sacraments. The public praise of God is the principal means by which the members of the congregation give voice to their faith in Jesus Christ and bear witness to God's grace. As a member you have promised to be constant in your worship, offering your praise to God Sunday after Sunday with your fellow 'believer priests.'

Servicethe church is designed to offer all types of people, with various abilities and interests an opportunity to express their faith in prayer, study, and service. Membership is more than money and attendance at worship. It is participation in the life and work of the Church. Those having children have a special responsibility for the Christian nurture of those children. Because of this, participation in the educational processes of this parish is not an option to be used occasionally, but a matter of fidelity to our baptismal vows. We take the Church seriously, primarily because it is Christ's Church, and as a member of this church we have placed ourselves under the discipline of this church. It should be clearly understood that membership in a Presbyterian Church is not an idle matter that can be fulfilled at one's convenience and leisure, but a high calling and privileged responsibility.
